

ADAM R. FOX

Adam R. Fox is partner in the Los Angeles office of Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, LLP, one of the largest international law firms with approximately 700 lawyers serving clients throughout the world, and with more than 25 offices spanning the globe, including nearby Tysons Corner and Washington DC. Mr. Fox is an experienced trial lawyer and appellate advocate whose practice embraces both commercial litigation and intellectual property matters. He was recently named by Los Angeles Magazine as one of Southern California's Rising Stars, a distinction reserved for those under 40 whom their peers consider to be among the top of the profession.

Mr. Fox's practice spans a range of substantive areas, but principally focuses on providing services to clients in the entertainment, high technology, and automotive industries. He has written a book on powerful legal writing and authored several law review articles, including two regarding developments in copyright law in the digital age. Mr. Fox has also lectured at Rutgers University addressing developments in intellectual property law, and served as a moderator at the University of California in Los Angeles on multiple panel discussions about recent developments in the wireless industry. He has also dedicated substantial time to pro bono activities, including the successful trial defense of innocent man wrongly accused of violent crime.

Prior to joining Squire Sanders, Mr. Fox served as a judicial clerk for the Honorable Robert B. Krupansky of the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

Mr. Fox received an economics degree in 1993 from the University of Colorado at Boulder, and a law degree in 1996 from the Cornell Law School, where he was a senior editor of the Cornell Law Review and a Fellow for the John M. Olin Foundation for Law and Economics.

