Agenda Items for December 6, 2017

1) Summer 2018 calendar

The summer terms are the same as they have been in past years: Sessions 1, A, B, C and D, with various meeting schedules in each term. This year, the Add, Drop, and Selective Withdrawal dates have been adjusted so they are roughly proportional to the dates as found in the Academic Policies section of the University Catalog.* The dates would vary within a given term because of the different meeting schedules, which does not occur during the standard academic year semester. Because administering several Add, Drop, and Withdrawal dates within a term would be burdensome, the latest date for each deadline among multiple schedules was chosen.

The AP committee has not received a finalized calendar.

* AP.1.3.2 Changing Registration

The last day for adding a 14-week course is eight calendar days after and including the first day of classes. The last day for dropping a 14-week course is five calendar weeks after the first day of classes (including the first day).

AP.1.5.1 Selective Withdrawal for Undergraduates

The academic calendar for each semester will include an open withdrawal period beginning the day after the last day to drop the class and extending through the ninth week.

 For the most extreme example, in Session B, there are three meeting schedules: MW, 2hr. 40 min.; TR, 2hr. 40 min.; and MWF, 2hr. The Add deadline for each of these (corresponding to 1-week of meetings in the standard academic year semester) would be after the first meeting for MW and TR and after the second meeting for MWF. The Add deadline is chosen to be on Thursday, which is generous for the MW and TR classes, and correct for the MWF class.

2) Academic Year 2020-2021 calendar

At the last Faculty Senate meeting, the AP Committee presented a graphic of the university's proposed calendar for the 2020-2021 academic year. The committee has not yet received the publishable text copy of the calendar.

3) Course repeat limit

The Academic Procedures Advisory Committee (APAC), which consists of a group of Assistant/Associate Deans and administrators who regularly interact with students and is chaired by the Registrar, will present their proposal to limit to three the number of times an undergraduate student may attempt any course without approval.

This presentation under New Business is intended to inform Senators of various options and to solicit responses. The recommendation follows the discussion last month in the Faculty Senate regarding academic units that wish to impose repeat restrictions on some or all of their courses, to both majors and non-majors. The Academic Policies Committee will further consider the proposal before making a recommendation to the Faculty Senate in the Spring.

Background information appears under New Business. These are some highlights:

- The limit (N = 3) would be university-wide. Units may have lower limits. Units may give permission to exceed the university limit according to their own criteria.

- The limit is for graded attempts. The limit does not include the W notation.
The intent is to counsel students before they are able to register for the 4th attempt.

Statistics for Fall 2010-Spring 2016, including summers (these data are very rough and include both graded attempts and W’s and so the actual numbers of courses and student attempts are probably smaller):

There were 568 courses where at least one student attempted the course (graded or W) at least 3 times (~7000 student-attempts). In 368 of those courses, there were no attempts by any student beyond 3. So students were presumably satisfied with their 3rd attempt or decided not to attempt for a 4th time (either by choice or not). 368/568 = 65%

Of the remaining 200 courses (970 students), students stopped after a 4th attempt in 116 courses. 116/200 = 58%

86% of repeated courses (N ≥ 3) come from 17 departments/academic units

Presentation from APAC, represented by Jeannie Brown Leonard

University Course Repeat Policy Proposal
Limit to three the number of times a student (degree-seeking or non-degree) may take any undergraduate course that is not repeatable for credit. Attempts beyond three require approval of the student’s major academic advisor with oversight from the Student Academic Affairs unit in the respective schools/colleges. Only graded attempts are counted; if students withdraw from a course (W on the transcript), it is not counted as a graded attempt. Students who exhaust unit-level appeal processes may appeal to the Associate Provost for Undergraduate Education.

Justification
The motivation behind the course repeat policy is to find a systematic way for academic advisors to engage with students to help them be successful in their chosen path or to help them discover an alternative path to their goals, perhaps one better suited to their strengths. Because students can earn multiple Fs in a course without affecting their GPA, this limit on course repeats would offer such a point of intervention. A second goal is consistency. We have different rules and processes based on school/college. Advisors would welcome the chance to intervene with students before a fourth attempt of a course and would work together to develop guidelines for granting permission to override the limit. This policy is not intended to lead to termination from the major.

Peer Institutions
The range of approaches is broad from no limits on course repeats at James Madison University to repeats being allowed only with Dean’s permission at UVA.

NOTES
N=3 attempts would be the maximum university-wide. Units that currently have or wish to have a lower N may do so (N=2, for example). Units are free to determine the criteria for allowing students to exceed the attempt limit. This policy would have no effect on units' Termination from the Major policy.

Implementation and communication details will be carefully planned to address:
Request forms
Override criteria
Communication during second and third attempt
Communication and plan for students enrolled in attempt 3, 4 or more in fall 2018
Removal of restriction when permission for fourth or subsequent attempt is granted

This policy proposal has support from the academic advising community, schools/colleges Dean’s Offices, Undergraduate Council, and the Collaborative for Undergraduate Education membership.
