

innovations

TECHNOLOGY | GOVERNANCE | GLOBALIZATION

Speaker biographies (alphabetical order)

Philip Auerswald is Director of the Center for Science and Technology Policy and an Assistant Professor at the School of Public Policy. Professor Auerswald's work focuses on linked processes of technological and organizational change in the contexts of policy, economics, and strategy. He is the founding co-editor of Innovations: Technology | Governance | Globalization, a quarterly journal from MIT Press about people using technology to address global challenges. He is author and co-author of numerous books, reports, and research papers, including Seeds of Disaster, Roots of Response: How Private Action Can Reduce Public Vulnerability (Cambridge University Press, 2006). He is a research associate with the Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs, Harvard University.

Charles Doran is the Andrew W. Mellon Professor of International Relations; Director of the Global Theory and History Program; and Director of the Center for Canadian Studies at the Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies. Professor Doran was formerly professor and director of international management program at Rice University. He has directed major research projects on North American trade, Canadian-U.S. relations, Persian Gulf security and U.S.-German-Japanese relations. He has been a regular adviser to business and government and has provided congressional briefings and testimony on trade, security and energy policy. Professor Doran is recipient of the Donner Medal, the Governor General's Award for Scholarship on Canada and the International Studies Association's Distinguished Scholar Award (Foreign Policy).

Adam Garfinkle is the editor of The American Interest. Previously, he was a speechwriter to the U.S. Secretary of State, and editor of The National Interest. He has taught American foreign policy and Middle East politics at the University of Pennsylvania and the School of Advanced International Studies of The Johns Hopkins University. He has also served on the staff of the National Security Study Group of the U.S. Commission on National Security/21st Century (the Hart-Rudman Commission), as an aide to General Alexander M. Haig, Jr., and as a special assistant to Senator Henry M. Jackson.

Eugene Gholz joined the University of Texas at Austin Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs. Previously he was an Assistant Professor at the University of Kentucky's Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce. Gholz is a Research Associate at MIT's Security Studies Program, a term member of the Council on Foreign Relations, and a member of the Board of Advisors at the Independent Institute's Center on Peace and Liberty. An expert on the aerospace and defense industries, Gholz has authored and coauthored numerous articles, book chapters, and op-ed columns on innovation, business-government relations, defense management, and U.S. foreign military policy, including Buying Transformation: Military Innovation and the Defense Industry.

Lawrence Korb Lawrence J. Korb is a Senior Fellow at American Progress and a Senior Advisor to the Center for Defense Information. Prior to joining American Progress, he was a Senior Fellow and Director of National Security Studies at the Council on Foreign Relations. From July 1998 to October 2002, he was Council Vice President, Director of Studies, and holder of the Maurice Greenberg Chair. Prior to joining the Council, Mr. Korb served as Director of the Center for Public Policy Education and Senior Fellow in the Foreign Policy Studies Program at the Brookings Institution; Dean of the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Pittsburgh; Vice President of Corporate Operations at the Raytheon Company; and Director of Defense Studies at the American Enterprise Institute. Dr. Korb served as Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower, Reserve Affairs, Installations, and Logistics) from 1981 through 1985. In that position, he administered about 70 percent of the defense budget. For his service in that position, he was awarded the Department of Defense's medal for Distinguished Public Service. Dr. Korb is the author of 20 books and more than 100 articles on national security. His more than 100 op-ed pieces have appeared in such major newspapers as The Washington Post, The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Times, Los Angeles Times, The Boston Globe, The Baltimore Sun, The Philadelphia Inquirer, and The Christian Science Monitor.

Peter Mandaville is Associate Professor in the Department of Public and International Affairs and Co-Director of Mason's Center for Global Studies at George Mason University in Virginia. He is the author of Global Political Islam, termed by The Economist, "a well-informed account of the origins of mainstream Islamism, the strategies of Islamisation, the emergence of the radical fringe, the competition for authority among Muslim elites and the impact of globalisation on Muslim politics." He has authored numerous book chapters and journal articles, contributed to publications such as the International Herald Tribune and The New Republic, and consulted extensively for media, government and non-profit agencies.

Ambassador Molly Williamson is an Adjunct Scholar with the Middle East Institute. Previously she was Senior Foreign Policy Advisor to the Secretary of Energy (2005-2008); Deputy Assistant Secretary of Commerce for the Middle East, South Asia, Oceania and Africa (1999-2004); Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for International Organizations (1996 to 1999); Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for the Middle East, Africa, and South Asia from (1993 to 1995); and Chief of Mission and Consul General in Jerusalem during the Madrid Peace process (1991-1993).